

NEWS > AGRICULTURE

Sustainable Solano to host regenerative agriculture discussion

By NICK SESTANOVICH | nsestanovich@thereporter.com |

PUBLISHED: November 17, 2020 at 4:22 p.m. | UPDATED: November 17, 2020 at 4:22 p.m.

Regenerative agriculture is an approach to food production that includes rebuilding soil, working with plants and animals, increasing biodiversity and improving watersheds.

Those who want to know more can tune into a virtual discussion hosted by Sustainable Solano and featuring a Vacaville resident and his son.

Matthew and Ryland Engelhart will be talking about regenerative agriculture. Matthew and his wife, Terces, utilize the practices at Be Love Farm on Bucktown Lane, which produces everything from granola to olive oil to pesto to fermented hot sauce.

The Engelharts are also the founders of the vegan restaurant chain Cafe Gratitude as well as the sustainable Mexican restaurant Gracias Madre in San Francisco's Mission District.

Ryland is the co-founder and executive director of Kiss the Ground, a nonprofit aimed at promoting regenerative agriculture. Ryland is also a producer of the documentary of the same name, which focuses on how the approach can balance the climate. The film, narrated by Woody Harrelson, is available to view on Netflix.

The Engelharts will discuss the topics presented in the film as well as ways healthy soil can help heal the Earth and what individuals can do to support a regenerative approach. The conversation will be led by Stephanie Oelsigle Jordan — Sustainable Solano's local food program manager — and an audience Q&A will follow.

The discussion will take place 4 p.m. Dec. 4 on Zoom. A link will be provided upon registering at Eventbrite.com/e/kiss-the-ground-film-regenerative-agriculture-discussion-tickets-128553834981.

Nick Sestanovich

SPONSORED CONTENT

Try the Name Your Price® Tool ↗

By Progressive

Tell us what you want to pay and we'll find options to fit your budget.

